Creative Partnership Opportunities

In consideration of our communities future growth and the impact covid has had on its well-being Over Here Community Arts Adventure was created, addressing these issues using the Power of Creativity.

Over Here is a not for profit who's mission is to Implement public and community art projects and experiences in our rural and natural environment for the health and well-being of our community.

Why the arts? Well, because public art and art festivals have super powers! It's been proven over and over again to:

- Develop community pride and a sense of place

- Create wayfinding landmarks

- Connect citizens to their neighbours

- Create supportive learning environments

- Boost local economies

- Improves mental health and well-being

There is an urgency to get ahead of the growth for the benefit of all our residents, whether they were born here or just moved here. Over Here plans to build a healthy environment that values inclusivity, diversity and equality, well-being, community, environment and creative process.

With your support, Over Here can make this positive impact in our community, growing year over year creating a healthy and vibrant future.

Over Here Adventure Menu

We have created an in-depth plan that will build year over year creating an Art Trail that the community can be proud of and benefit mentally, physically, spiritley and financially. In addition there are two types of events planned to engage the community and visitors. Both events feature items from our adventure menu. All of these items also feed our year round adventure. Confused? Yes it's hard to explain so let us draw you a schematic to help link the ingredients and imagine how the menu items are designed to feed your soul.

AT HOME Over Here — The big dream to have Brick & Mortar

Look Over Here - Selfie Stations

The Look Over Here component is an opportunity to look through a lens while linking you to historical, educational and futuristic elements. For Instance:

1. Framed vistas located through out our rural environment – set specifically to capture something of interest creating year-round social media opportunity.
2. History shared through podcasts linked by QR Codes to stories and images on Over-Here.ca
3. Even augmented reality elements can image the future or elaborate on the present and past.
4. Scenic locations showcasing our community highlighting what we have to share.

LOOK Over Here is fun and educational, built especially for the site using props to support the locations story while allowing the scenery and the story take centre stage.
